Dear FCC and NAB and others concerned with this issue:

I am writing regarding the issue of petition 04-160 concerning the limiting of satellite radio to broadcast certain information to me as a listener. I recently purchased a new car with XM radio capabilities that I activated for free for three months. At the end of that three months, I renewed my subscription for another year. I very much enjoy the variety and quality programming that XM satellite radio provides. I can get up to the minute information that I need while driving to plan my route and day without having to wait for other morning shows to finish talking before providing me the most essential information that I want as a listener. When other radio stations can provide the same things that XM satellite radio provides perhaps my thoughts will change. As a second point, this service is also something that I pay for so why can't satellite radio broadcast what their consumers want? The amount of control that this country exhibits is truly getting out of hand. The important topics that need to be addressed are tip-toed around, and issues such as 04-160 come before the people. I simply feel like I am a woman mature enough to make decisions such as what I tune into my radio. I urge you to reject NAB's petition 04-160.

Thank you for your consideration,
Mrs. Tanya Jones
